

Time Misunderstood

Fearless Vampire Killers

Time misunderstood
Like living as a clear roadway
When first you make mistakes you only crash
And burn

Violent whispers speak
Invading every hopeful moment
They tell you it's a lie
[?] what's compromised
But there's too much left behind

Feelings I can't face
From that should I refuse to trust them
I'll run to feel inspired
And to [?]
Crumble just to use
We're tired, and afraid

There's only so much, of this weight
I'm holding on to what I can take
It must be time to let some go
Forgive this burden on my soul

Burning hard and fast
Well life can be a cold cycle
[?] day
In day out

Finding out [?]
Deflecting any truth that don't match yours
'Cause deep in our excuses
Is a victim rationale
We just have to be the martyr

'Cause life is not a road
It's a maze of a thousand pathways
We're destined for confusion
'Cause black and white is grey
And we hide from our decisions
And the greatest lines fade

There's only so much, of this weight (all this time)
I'm holding on to what I can take (oh)
It must be time to let some go (go)
Forgive this burden on my soul

I let my ocean take me home
But in this water there's a curse
With each wave closer I am
Further from home

Far
No heartburn
Lost
In this storm
Under red and black out sky
And no hero

Just lone water
So am I
A creature

Of the weak
Of the frail
But that's why
I must try

There's only so much, of this weight
I'm holding on to what I can take
It must be time to let some go
Forgive this burden on my soul

Is it so easy to forgive
Am I just scared to learn to live
My own skin, with my own pain
Am I afraid I've lost the flame