

Sunrise

Feeder

I don't want to be the one who sleeps alone
I don't want to feel this emptiness surrounding me, no place to go
I don't want to walk along these streets alone
I don't want to turn my head around
And feel that there's no colour anymore

Moving to the left - where should I go
Moving to the right - Soho side shows
People come and people go
Moving to the left - all they ever wished for Moving to the right - in this life is still insight

Everywhere I go, places that I know
Summer is alive (Look into the light)
Rising from below - sunrise
The city is awake, ready for the day
Summer is alive (Look into the light)
Always... sunrise

I don't want to be the one who fights alone
I don't want to wake and feel that there's this silence
Now the love has gone
I don't want to be the one who cries alone
And I don't want to be the one who falls
And wonders where it all went wrong

Moving to the left - where should I go
Moving to the right - Soho side shows
People come and people go

Everywhere I go, places that I know
Summer is alive (Look into the light)
Rising from below - sunrise
The city is awake, ready for the day
Summer is alive (Look into the light)
Always... sunrise

As a crowd gathered across the road
Looking up to a man on a tightrope
There's a woman selling autographs, says that they're original
How would we ever know?

Sunrise
Everywhere I go, places that I know
Summer is alive (Look into the light)
Rising from below - sunrise
The city is awake, ready for the day
Summer is alive (Look into the light)
Always... sunrise
Sunrise