

Riddled

Fen

Done with the riddle that seem been through my time,
Can't think of anything, all these brains entwined
Exceeding outlives general sense of ease,
Day and night, now with me.

I know it's time to let go,
I know it's time to be happy
With all I've undone so far
Well, I'll try, try.

Just one more minute
And I could break this wall down
Make that one more hour
And I'm sleeping real sound.

I swear I'm done with the riddle that's looking through my eyes
The answer can be anywhere, any shape or size.
Once I thought it was a guarantee,
I was young, look at me.

I know it's time to let go,
I know it's time to be happy
Right out the universe
Well, I'll try, try.

Just one more minute
And I could break this wall down
Make that one more hour
And I'm dancing around.

I never believed the tale would be endless
Always believed the end will be mine.

In one more year I swear I'm done.

I need some shell
Try every door in the hall, no answer
Turn every stone in the world, still no answer
Scattering chickens and trails, no answer
Packet the build in the parent's surveillance.

Swallow what's galvin and grey, no answer,
Jump on eleven thirteen, still no answer,
Follow a Pegasus home, no answer,
Flow back the hat for a shout to infinity.
