

I look at you and say that I love you
But it means much more than it seems
See you've been a friend to me, in so many different ways
I'll never forget how it feels to hold your hand
It's these things that we share that'll keep our dreams alive
Even though we seem so far away
You look at me and say that you love me
But it means much more than it seems
See we get so caught up in what everyone thinks is right
We sacrifice what we need
It's so easy to run but so hard not to look back
Situations are always open to change
Can you spare some change so I can ride Bart?
