Other Light

Finger Eleven

Never tell your friends They'll never understand Confessions only burn themselves in the fire Choke on every word That no one's ever heard Your sentimental thoughts are strangled and tired

See it in another light You'll see it working out alright I know I won't change any mind As long as they're still changing mine

As simple as they can They're telling you again What they think you've done is so unbecoming But you don't have to take Every old mistake And always see it as a fall while you're running

Saw it in other light I saw it work out alright I know I won't change your mind As long as they're changing mine
