

The Great Unravelling

Fish

He met her; she had me, spiraling ribbons, cut the cord away
The twists of life the knots of dreams, this was before the gre at unraveling.

In time no strings attached so wild and free,
No ties to bind, a world before us
We threaded hopes within the tapestries we wove
So far away, the great unraveling

The great unraveling- she tied my laces, sewed the buttons, spu n the rhymes

The great unraveling - he taught the ropes, he spared the rod, drew the lines

The great unraveling - she slowed the blood, my beating heart t he streaming tears

The great unraveling.

The strands of time, the rules and chains that bind us,
That holds us down till we forget just how to fly,
Bound by fears, of change from old traditions
Began to sense the great unraveling

The lives that we played before,
Stretch into our past define us,
Instinctively hearts entwine
Love brings us closer to carry us forward

The seeds that we sow today
The loose ends we tie and nurture
The threads that we spin and weave
To uncertain futures we usher them into the light.
Into the light, into the light.

Imprint the knowledge, pass the message on

I know I have to let you go

One day I have to say goodbye

I know that I will have to leave and give up to the light

Into the light.
