

The Strange Design of Conscience

Flaming Lips

Given the hopeless nature of our times
And how it would change things
And given the circumstances of our lives
You'd have done the same thing

You'd have done the same thing
You'd have done the same thing

So if we're talking about forgiveness
Well, don't put me up above you
'Cause in the strange design of conscience
We are controlled by our desires

That can never be realized
That can never be realized
That can never be real

And given the hopeless nature of our times
And how it would change things
And given the circumstances of our lives
You'd have done the same thing

You'd have done the same thing
You'd have done the same thing
You'd have done the same thing
You'd have done the same

You'd have done the same
You'd have done the same
