

Here so high, I fell for you wasting time
Chasing cars around our heads and I
Had a lot to think about those nights
Lessons learned on pages I'd never turned Cross bridges I never burned to places I'd hide

Maybe we're two sides of the same coin
Closing our eyes to help us avoid
That only one of us can land face up in the toss
Or maybe the end is just the start of us
Two stars in a cosmic bust
We've fallen but we still we trust the sky
To pull us back into

Line, line
I'm feeling fine
You pull me back into line
Pull me back into line, pull me back into line

Quietly close, through windows I kept composed
The door creaking open slow, your words like an undertow
Of yellow patience, orbits of understatements
Chasing cars became races, that soul-starved glow

Oh and my heart tried to be honest
But I was still tied to a promise
And there was only room for error in that hope
Here in the night it's all this light and dust
Two stars in a cosmic fuss, falling but we still we trust the s ky
To pull us back into

Line, line
I'm feeling fine
You pull me back into line
Pull me back into line, pull me back into line

Underwater over skies, tethered by our starry eyes
Oh you know it's now or never now or never Underwater over skies, circling we think we fly
Oh you know we've gotta try

To fall back into line, I'm feeling fine
Falling back into line, I'm feeling fine
Falling back into line, I'm feeling fine