Holy water, drown it out
Save me from my sins

I've been worrying about the same old things
I tried to block 'em out
But somehow they keep getting in, oh
I've learned to satisfy the riddles in my mind
I can't help myself, guess it's a habit of a lifetime

And I don't feel afraid to say
It's all a little bit messed up but that's okay
'Cause there is beauty in my lonely mind
And all the heavy hearts that complicate our lives, oh

I'm unstable
I'm mislabelled
But I wouldn't be anyone else
And sometimes it's painful
But it's what I'm made from

Sometimes I feel like I could take on all the world
And then I second guess myself, I guess I'll never learn
I search for solace in extraordinary lies
They can always find some colour in the darkest times

And I don't feel afraid to say
It's all a little bit messed up but that's okay
'Cause there is beauty in my lonely mind
And all the heavy hearts that complicate our lives, oh

I'm unstable
I'm mislabelled
But I wouldn't be anyone else
And sometimes it's painful
But it's what I'm made from
I'm unstable
Lost in labels
But I wouldn't be anyone else
And sometimes it's painful
But it's what I'm made from

Holy water, drown it out
Save me from my sins
