

Addiction

Fractures

Take note of the broken heart
Straight through where the hole was cut, let it take you
Can't keep it from breaking up
Cut through you, you feel it falling

To come alive again, to hear a call
You feel the coldness now, it follows

Never get addicted to something so strong
Never let it in to discover it's gone
It spins you around and then it lets you go
Come now, come down to the last light
Never get addicted to loving somehow

Stay low in the coldest parts
Still the heart it hangs within the walls, crumbling
Can you feel it beating out a rhythm that you recall
You force out and harden

Nothing ever comes of it to pull you back under
You thought it didn't matter, didn't stop you from running circles

Never get addicted to something so strong
Never let it in to discover it's gone
It spins you around and then it lets you go
Come now, come down to the last light
Never get addicted to loving somehow

Coulda left it
What you waited for
Couldn't wrestle
Gone to look for something more
Only a flesh wound
But we're only flesh and bone
Count the bruises you tow

Never get addicted to something so strong
Never let it in to discover it's gone
It spins you around and then it lets you go
Come now, come down to the last light
Never get addicted to loving somehow