

Dawn

Fractures

Let's alternate
Rearrange for awhile
Relocate and redefine

'Cause sooner than later
We settle for the surface dealt
So in love with duplication
Stuck inside a pseudo vocation

We're so lost in safety
Frightened out of falling down
Cotton wool and preservation
Re-designation sooner than later, later

We never learn
We never learn
Always caught up in single file

Regrettable to live a life, running down, knowing either way

Dawn rolls in
Caught with our backs out of focus
Until we realise that it has passed us by,
If everything is unknown, just hold it
Lay down a path we can follow
And though we're running blind
And it might take awhile
We'll be alright

We're running wild
Or we're meant to be
So assigned to the in-between
If we knew why
Would we finally be sober, or just older?

This energy's wasted
Running out of reasons now
Falsify a grand intention
Hold out for divine intervention

Dawn rolls in
Caught with our backs out of focus
Until we realise that it has passed us by,
If everything is unknown, just hold it
Lay down a path we can follow
And though we're running blind
And it might take awhile
We'll be alright

Is what we know
Just a comfortable system
A place we found running for security
Is what we thought just a means of resistance
To inner fear of an overreach, overreach, overreach

Dawn rolls in
Caught with our backs out of focus

Until we realise that it has passed us by,
If everything is unknown, just hold it
Lay down a path we can follow
And though we're running blind
And it might take awhile
We'll be alright