

Sculptures

Fractures

Feeding the fire
Sitting in silence
Maybe we will fade away, not before we go higher
Walking on wires
Days we go flightless
Time and all the things between, we refuel and gather speed
The wind is behind us

Shifting shapes, this daylight makes us stronger than we know
Sharing space, our bodies make up sculptures of their own

Words without speaking
Something worth keeping
Close our eyes so we can see
Find it circling in our sleep
What we believe in

Will we know if it's too late to save it
Do we run, do we try and escape it
But we know this thing doesn't need saving
These sculptures will not fall

Shifting shapes, this daylight makes us stronger than we know
Sharing space, our bodies make up sculptures of their own

Casting shadows, peering windows, let these feelings grow
You say let's go, I will follow, we're already home

Shifting shapes, this daylight makes us stronger than we know
Sharing space, our bodies make up sculptures of their own
