

Nobody Like You

Francesco Yates

You know who you are.
Brighter than the brightest star.
Heaven to my fingertips.
Baby, you're the greatest I've ever kissed.

There's nobody, nobody like you.
There's nobody, nobody like you.
The way you walk, the way you talk, the way you move.
Ask me again and I'll say it to you.
There is nobody like, like, like, nobody like you.

I'm so happy I've got you.
Every day I discover.
There's nothing quite like you.
You're unlike any other.

You've got the right curves.
Makin' every head turn.
And everybody wants what you've got.
But there's only one you.
Yeah, there's only one you.

There's nobody, nobody like you.
There's nobody, nobody like you.
The way you walk, the way you talk, the way you move.
Ask me again and I'll say it to you.
There is nobody like, like, like, nobody like you.

I'm so happy I've got you.
Every day I discover.
There's nothing quite like you.
You're unlike any other.

Though you know, (you know) you know who you are,
(you know, baby) and how the shape of you baby,
perfectly fits with my heart.
So don't you fake it, baby.

There's nobody, nobody like you.
There's nobody, nobody like you.
The way you walk, the way you talk, the way you move.
Ask me again and I'll say it to you.

There's nobody, nobody like you.
There's nobody, nobody like you.
The way you walk, the way you talk, the way you move.
Ask me again and I'll say it to you.
There is nobody like, like, like, nobody like you.
