

It Pulls You Up

From Indian Lakes

You were sitting down
I was picking flowers
We were in the sun
And now it's getting later now
I can see our bodies
I can come undone

And now it pulls you up
It weighs you down
And nothing ever feels the same
Are we afraid of what we're missing now
The feeling never goes away

But when you hear the sound
I turn to this mistake
Did I let you go again?
It pulls you up
It weighs you down

Hovering above
We can see for miles all the green and blue
And now I'm covered in the dirt
I just sold my soul and my body, too

And now it pulls you up
It weighs you down
And nothing ever feels the same
Are we afraid of what we're missing now
The feeling never goes away

But when you hear the sound
I turn to this mistake
Did I let you go again?
It pulls you up
It weighs you down
You hear the sound
I turn to this mistake
Did I let you go again?
It pulls you up
It weighs you down

It pulls you up
It weighs you down