I wanted to feel something To be something To see something I wanted to find one thing that was mine And leave this behind But I can't find my way To get far away and bury these days Fantasy once reality Becomes such a parody If I could find one thing that was mine I'd leave this behind But I can't find my way To get far away and bury these days If shining or if shaking It's reality faking If I could find One thing that was mine I'd leave this behind But I can't find my way To get far away and bury these days
