

Perish the pain
I was impoverished
Those ties that wind
And stared into open lanes
Stared into long long nights
Howling and still

West of the Eastern Cove
Carving the wind
Dawn of your eyes
Dust off your smile

When you say 'us'
You make me trust

I will never keep you from an open door
I know, you know

That's how much I feel in everything you are
You know, I know

Hot as the day
When we sat on stones
Watching the fish, run
Under our feet, and flow

And dove from the rocks
Scraping my knees and toes

And blood, with me, rose
Slow from the sea

And you were waiting for me
Waiting for me
Waiting for me
Waiting for me
You were waiting for me

It's just how much
When you say 'us'
You don't know just how much
You make me trust

I will never keep you from an open door
I know, you know

That's how much I feel in everything you are
I know, I know

I will never keep you from an open door
I know, you know

I will never keep you from just who you are
I know, I know
