

Evaporate

Gabrielle Aplin

Flesh and bone wrapped up in skin
Kept alive by oxygen
But right now breathing is so tough.

They say they know what I can feel
And time will find a way to heal
But right now time is not enough.

But then I feel you soaking in
I can feel the blood rushing again

When it's too hard and too late,
When I'm too tired to run away
When it can't stay the way it was,
I need you 'cause
You smash the trouble I can't take
And all the pieces of the break
Evaporate, evaporate, evaporate

I don't know how the words you say
Hold a thousands times more weight
Than any word I've heard before.

But then I feel you soaking in,
I can feel the blood rushing again
Through my veins, I can feel the pulse begin to race

When it's too hard and too late
When I'm too tired to run away
When it can't stay the way it was
I need you 'cause
You smash the trouble I can't take
And all the pieces of the break
Evaporate, evaporate, evaporate

Run, run, watch them run away
Fly, fly, make them fly away

When it's too hard and too late
When I'm too tired to run away
When it can't stay the way it was,
I need you, 'cause
You smash the trouble I can't take
And all the pieces of the break
Evaporate, evaporate, evaporate
Evaporate, evaporate, evaporate