

Stranger

Gabriels

All I ever wanted
Was a second glance
From the one in the flame on the photograph
Without the sound of experience
All these memories
Killing all my energy
Shattered glass, broken bones and another chance
All I ever wanted was a second glance

As we remember hopes and dreams
Being loved ain't what it seems
If I die I'll never dare
To my one and only friend
You were with me till the end
Come what may and we'll meet again

Lord, forgive me!
Father, can you hear me?
Siren songs in the song of an innocent
I would tell the truth, but what's the difference?

You were my cornerstone
Before anyone needed anyone
Your arms always felt like
Home

I wish I would have told you
We had something I never had
I wish that I could hold you
I fucked up and can't take it back
Remember what I told you
I'd do the things that make you mad
First time I was inside you
I knew this shit would all be bad

Now we're just strangers
Two distant strangers
Now we're just strangers
Two distant strangers
Now we're just strangers
Two distant strangers

I wish I would have told you
We had something I never had
I wish that I could hold you
I fucked up and can't take it back
Remember what I told you
I'd do the things that make you
First time I was inside you
I knew this shit would all be bad

Now we're just strangers
Two distant strangers
Now we're just strangers
Two distant strangers

Now you're a stranger

You're just a stranger
