Afterglow

Garbage

Centre on the wide horizon Focus on the galaxy Sweep away your expectations and recognise your enemies

I hear you talking to yourself You're stripping off for someone else You've got to learn to love yourself It's all that counts, there's little else

You're always looking for affections and all its possibilities Your senses searching for attention in urgent need of gravity

I think you think you're someone else You've got to learn to save yourself Before you find there's nothing left But bitterness And hollowness And afterglow And afterglow.
