

This Old Heart Won't Let Go

Gary Stewart

These eyes of mine have cried all they can Till I'm just a shell of what was once a man
And these shoulders are tired from carrying such a load
This body wants to give up but this old heart just won't let go

My lips are tired of calling out your name
My ears have heard till they're almost insane
And these trembling hands have let the whole world know
This body wants to give up but this old heart just won't let go

Or is there a chance you might come back to my world again
Even in million and one you're the only one that could make me live again
But almost every part of me says no
This body wants to give up but this old heart just won't let go
This body wants to give up but this old heart just won't let go
