

I Forget You Everyday

Gene Watson

Memory is a gift man can't live without
And at times, we can't control the things we think about
But sometimes, I remember you in every way
But for a little while, I forget you every day

Seems like I forget you just in time
And it's always just before I lose my mind
I wake up every morning hurting the same old way
But for a little while, I forget you every day

Seems like I forget you every day
But it's always just before I lose my mind
I wake up every morning hurting the same old way
But for a little while, I forget you every day
I wake up every morning hurting the same old way
Oh, but for a little while, I forget you every day
