I cross the road just to hide and to avoid the times when you stood at my side so battered by the tide a wreck expsed at my door my eyes they cannot lie so get up from my floor for you, you've had your time. your chance has gone you're not so strong. your words they cannot harm me now. But with all the things that I've said I'm still haunted by you in every town, every place you're waiting. on my tongue lies disgrace still haunted by you yes you, you're in my way