

Two Sides

Gentle Bones

Silence, these words I cannot give you
Silence, searching through the noise
And all around me there's a weight of emptiness I can't ignore
All I have is silence and these skeletons
To break this fall

I've built you up inside my mind
Overpromises you can't keep
Go blame it on the years of Wasted opportunity

I've carried us a million miles
I've turned to take your view
Why say it if you don't mean it?
What's left for me to lose?

I saw it in your eyes before we said hello
Think twice was it really that long ago
All that hurt, what's it worth
Tell me what you know

After all this time I still get emotional
Won't lie, I'm trying not to let it show
Two sides now, who's right
Tell me what you know

Kindness, you've taken it from granted
Remind us of better times before
And the more I learn about the truth of us
The less I can be sure
All we had was kindness for medicine
The curse and the cure

You left me out to hang and dry
Like the secrets you can't keep
And shame on us, we lost ourselves
In the possibilities

It's falling apart a million ways
Illusions we can't choose
Why say it if you don't mean it?
What's left for me to lose?

I saw it in your eyes before we said hello
Think twice was it really that long ago
All that hurt, what's it worth
Tell me what you know

After all this time I still get emotional
Won't lie, I'm trying not to let it show
Two sides now, who's right
Tell me what you know

What you know
What you know
Tell me what you know
