

Is the fear of what happen
If everyone found out?
Or the mistakes that you made yesterday
That are still with you right now?
Like an anchor pulling you down
With the weight of your regret

Is all these things that make you forget

On your best day, on your worst day
Every second that you're breathing you are loved, loved
You can rise up, you can fall down
And it never changes how much are loved, loved

What if you woke up tomorrow
And believed his grace was true
That forgiveness is for everyone
Even for you
Let your past be where you came from
Not who you are anymore

There's a hope and a future that you can know for sure
On your best day, on your worst day
Every second that you're breathing you are loved, loved
You can rise up, you can fall down
And it never changes how much are loved, loved
Nothing ever separates us
From the love of God
Nothing ever separates us
From the love of God

On your best day, on your worst day
Every second that you're breathing you are loved
You can rise up, you can fall down
And it never changes how much are loved, loved

On our best day, on our worst day
Every second that we're breathing
We are loved, loved
We can rise up, we can fall down
And it never changes how much we are loved, loved

Nothing ever separates us
From the love of God
Nothing ever separates us
From the love of God