

On Second Thought

George Jones

I just lost the one in life that was my everthing
Some one I took for granted 'cause she was here
Now what have I done to make her hate me so
But on second thought what have I done to make her stay?

I never treated her like she was something special
Although my heart knows she really is
But she can't see how I feel if I don't show it
And on second thought I guess I never did.

I never treated her like she was something special
Although my heart knows she really is
But she can't see how I feel, I don't show it
And on second thought I guess I never did.

And on second thought I guess I never did...