

Will There Ever Be Another

George Jones

We said goodbye but I still love you
No one else can take your place
I still recall the happy hours
I can still see the smile upon your face

Will there ever be another
While we're many miles apart
To hold you close upon you darling
And take my place inside your heart

The days and nights are growing longer
It seems like years since yesterday
But I still have the memory of you
To help me pass the time away

Will there ever be another
While we're many miles apart
To hold you close upon you darling
And take my place inside your heart

Will there ever be another
While we're many miles apart
To hold you close upon you darling
And take my place inside your heart
