

Lust

Ghost Bath

Darkness drives my hand
Burying my thought and sorrow
Before me stands a parable of man
Who once was and always is
He breathes my breathe
And stalks the ancient tomes
Not willing to answer my cries
Selfish and alone