Gin Wigmore

It was always you
You found a way to win me over
Now this halo 'round my head
Is hanging by a thread

If I drowned in tears, I wonder –
Would you save me, like you said?
I will roll the dice to die
And it's all because of you

I've waited twenty-four hours
All alone in this tower;
Have I lost all connection to you?
I've waited twenty-four hours –
Twenty-four hours
For you

Another shade of blue –
In mercy and surrender,
I submit to your desire
To hurt me like you do

Slip inside my head
I feel it getting colder
I wait alone to die
And it's all because of you

I've waited twenty-four hours
All alone in this tower;
Have I lost all connection to you?
I've crossed my heart in the sky –
It came down with your lies
Now every second feels forever without you

I've waited twenty-four hours
All alone in this tower;
Have I lost all connection to you?
I've waited twenty-four hours –
Twenty-four hours
For you

(To the dust that kills
To the walls I've built
To my great mistake of loving you)

I've waited twenty-four hours
All alone in this tower;
Have I lost all connection to you?
I've crossed my heart in the sky –
It fell down with your lies
Now every second feels forever without you

I've waited twenty-four hours
All alone in this tower;
Have I lost all connection to you?
I've waited twenty-four hours –
Twenty-four hours

For you
