Brush Fire

Gracie Abrams

Started as a simple lie
Thinking love had chose us
We would talk into the night
And nobody noticed

And I held on to every word
Couldn't let you go and called it hope
Now I'm so low, I can't ignore
We only ever made it worse

Then we become a brush fire, burning all the pain
How can we survive a desert without rain?
And all along your promise is that you're changing
Boy, you know what to say before I turn away
Your words hit me like a hard rain in LA

Scared to turn and look behind
Think I'd see you hurting
And even when I close my eyes
I feel like the burden

But I'm not yours anymore
Everything you broke is ash and smoke now
I'm so low, I can't ignore
We only ever made it worse

Then we become a brush fire, burning all the pain
How can we survive a desert without rain?
And all along your promise is that you're changing
Boy, you know what to say before I turn away
Your words hit me like a hard rain in LA

Then we become a brush fire, burning all the pain
How can we survive a desert without rain?
And all along your promise is that you're changing
Boy, you know what to say before I turn away
Your words hit me like a hard rain in LA
