Fault Line

Gracie Abrams

You could go, and I won't even feel it
Wouldn't hold up the road when you're leaving
You're a bad holiday
You're the drug that I take
When I want to forget how I'm feeling

I know you're a fault line
But I'll break too
Cracking at the same time
Does it shock you?

When I'm down
I fall right back to you, it happens
I know you're a fault line
But I'll break too
I'll break too

You could go, and I bet I'd recover
Overnight, finish hurting each other
You feel light years away
If I met you today
I would run to the arms of another

I know you're a fault line
But I'll break too
Cracking at the same time
Does it shock you?

When I'm down
I fall back in to you, it happens
I know you're a fault line
But I'll break too
I'll break too

And all my imaginary friends are scared of you
I've gone and cried to them in our bedroom
Most nights I will pretend
I left this sooner

But I know you're a fault line
But I'll break too
Cracking at the same time
Does it shock you?

When I'm down
I fall back in to you, it happens
I know you're a fault line
But I'll break too

I'll break too
I'll break too
I'd break too
