Stay

Gracie Abrams

You told me something when I left but I don't remember
Maybe 'cause all I could do then was stare at the floor
I held myself 'cause you wouldn't, all wrapped in my sweatshirt
Wonder if you even noticed that that one was yours

And maybe I should've but I never told you I'm sorry
Know that I tried but my words always got in the way

Could you hold me without any talking
We could try to go back where we started
I don't even have to stay
I don't even have to stay but

If I woke up with you in the morning
I'd forget all the ways that we're broken
I don't care if you've changed
I don't even have to stay

I don't remember the last time I heard from your sister
Didn't expect to but I sort of thought that I would Wish I could tell you by now that I felt more indifferent
Catch myself thinking about you more than I should

And maybe I should have but I never told you I miss you
I almost said it but don't know if you feel the same

Could you hold me without any talking
We could try to go back where we started
I don't even have to stay
I don't even have to stay but

If I woke up with you in the morning
I'd forget all the ways that we're broken
I don't care if you've changed
I don't even have to stay
