

Something Is Changing

Granger Smith

I'm just a man with faded jeans and callused hands
Lost in a lie that I can be a rock
But what happens to a rock when it needs something to lean on
And guys like me just try to shake it off
But something is changing

I'm just a simple man, I try so hard to understand
Why I always act like I'm bulletproof
Each time I try to control, I only makes things worse
Maybe it's time I learned that it's no use

Cause it's easy to learn the hard way
I've learned the hard way
But I'm seeing that something is changing
And the changing might be good for me

They say the grass is greener
But that don't help a dreamer
I get so stuck with my stubborn heart

Somehow those pretty brown eyes
Are bringing me back to life
And I don't even know where to start

Cause it's easy to learn the hard way
I've learned the hard way
But I'm seeing that something is changing
And the changing might be good for me

I'm just a man with faded jeans and callused hands
Lost in a lie that I can be a rock

Yeah, it's easy to learn the hard way
I've learned the hard way
But I'm seeing that something is changing
And the changing might be good for me

Something is changing
And the changing might be good for me
Something is changing
Something is changing
And the changing might be good for me