

Rampant Fields

Graveyard

I saw the lights go out that morning
I needed more to let it go
This is not what I had in mind no
And the blackbirds keep singing for you
I needed more to let it go
Some day I might say I know what it's like
While I'm passing by through rampant fields
Yes I've seen your golden god

I cast my sorrow just a little too far
The splinter in my mind won't move at all
The fog as a cover and the nightmare was no dream
Oh no it was no dream

Now the shadow's taken over
I needed more to let you know
I can't tell if I'm high or low
All the reasons to stay are all gone
I needed more to let you in
You just keep dropping the nails from above
While I'm falling down this deep old well
Yes I've seen your worn out heart

I cast my sorrow just a little too far
The splinter in my mind won't leave at all
The fog as a cover and the nightmare was no dream
I wish it wasn't so

I see pictures falling slowly
Tell me is it worth it all
Crawling back I'm digging deeper
Blank sheets and nothing more

I've been down here for so long now
Tell me what do you need
Your hands are getting numb now
Crumbs of time just passing through

I've been down here for so long now
Tell me what do you need
Your hands are getting numb now
Crumbs of time just passing through
