

Dying Breed

Grayscale

You said you wanna sit down and talk
I remember it on a bleak December Kennett walk
Where I said lately I haven't been myself at all

Like Jesse said, I'm a dying breed
It's past the point of trying for me
And did you notice when I was crying of the
Front step of your parent's porch?
And now I know you're the reason I wish
Heart attacks and car crashes on people

And for the second time tonight
I'm fully prepared to lose a piece of myself with Miller
It's like we're the only kids with self respect
No matter what John or his shit eating dad says
They're racist

Like Jesse said, I'm a dying breed
It's past the point of trying for me
And did you notice when I was crying of the
Front step of your parent's porch?
And now I know you're the reason I wish
Heart attacks and car crashes on people

Spoken by reply so aptly broken
Where for years I had to choke in
All my hatred for you now you got what you deserved

Like Jesse said, I'm a dying breed
(On my own, and I can hear you breathing)
It's past the point of trying for me
(Begging me for a second chance at clarity so)
And did you notice when I was crying of the
Front step of your parent's porch?
(Now you know where you went wrong)
And now I know you're the reason I wish
Heart attacks and car crashes on people
(And why you've grown dead to me, and it'll stay that way for long)
