

Human Race

Groundation

Calling all the members of the human race
Can we keep up the pace
Oh, are we gonna lose what we have gained?
Don't let the words of a fool come lead us all astray

Poets, prophets, and musicians all find their place
Sending love into an inner space
Only through joy will we ease the pain
We are the generation that seek our faith in a new vision
Oh yes oh yeah!

If love was the rule
Would all this remain the same
Jah lives in everything, you see
Before the politicians come in
Only rivers of water and mountain divide all of them

Day one: light and darkness did divide
Day two: a sky so heavenly, oh yes!
Day three: land from waters
Day four: the sun, moon, and the stars above me
Day five: animals of the skies and seas
Day six: it was humanity, and it was good you see

Calling all the members of the human race
Oh, this is such a disgrace
Divide and rule is the oldest game
Separating I and I into superior and inferior race, oh yes oh yeah!

Police, soldiers, and mercenaries take hold of the State
While news media tell us to shelter in place
Yesterday we were jamming, but today
The crime of humanity will come to us as plague, war, and famine

If love was the rule
Would all this remain the same
Jah lives in everything, you see
Before the politicians come in
Only rivers of water and mountain divide all of them
