

Antidote

Guy Sebastian

It's funny how I hate it when I'm here, but here I am again
Like I was made to mend, but mending never seemed to make it end
And oh there you go, making it all make sense
It's funny how you find the words I've never found a way to say
Find a way to make a masterpiece out of the mess I've made
But oh there you go, making it all okay

You take the weight off my shoulder
You make it safe to get older
When I'm losing light, when I'm tipping over
You're where I go
Whenever my feet miss the landing
You take me from stumbling to dancing
You're where I go when everything's broken
My antidote

You've taken every part of me apart and put it back again
Whoa, and every place I've needed you's exactly where you've always been
I can't remember living life before you
Oh, how I adore you
Know everything would be in pieces if it weren't for you
Oh, it's funny how I almost walked away from the very thing that saved me
Whoa-oo-whoa

You take the weight off my shoulder
You make it safe to get older
When I'm losing light, when I'm tipping over
You're where I go
Whenever my feet miss the landing
You take me from stumbling to dancing
You're where I go when everything's broken
My antidote
Ooh whoa, my antidote

In the hopeless, in the lonely
Ain't nobody that could know me like you know me
From my brightest to my darkest hour
When I'm frozen in my weakness
I don't ever have to wonder where my home is
You're the brightest in my darkest hour

In the hopeless, in the lonely
Ain't nobody that could know me like you know me
From my brightest to my darkest hour
When I'm frozen in my weakness
I don't ever have to wonder where my home is
You're the brightest in my darkest hour (My antidote)

In the hopeless, in the lonely
Ain't nobody that could know me like you know me
From my brightest to my darkest hour
When I'm frozen in my weakness
I don't ever have to wonder where my home is
You're the brightest in my darkest hour (My antidote)

You're where I go
You're where I go