Halou

Lines in your forehead, I can see
All your attention divert from me
What could possibly weigh on you so heavily
I can tell you really need some perspective here
Take one small step outside of yourself
The grass looks no greener right here
Take one small step outside of yourself and you'll find
You're not the only one
Weight on your shoulders, a tragedy
Is making you older in front of me
Oh, why can't you see that you're here in good company
I can see you really need some perspective here
And you've fallen out of love with yourself
Yah, well, we're just all pillars of self-esteem
Take one small step outside of yourself and you'll find
You're not the only one
