

Glass Lanterns

Handguns

We set sail against the wind
Fail waves, rise, falls, fallacies
Murky water, I bet they'd never find me or spin the search lights for me

The fire in my eyes never faded out
The voices in my head they pulled me through the doubt
The sky is painted black, I'm drowning in a drought
The light above my head is a supernova

Not trying to live extraordinary lives, we'll just scrape by
Conquer the whole world, that's well and fine
We will just scrape by
We will just scrape by
We will just scrape

You might have bought it but you don't own it, you never cared to question the motive

You might have bought it but you don't own it, kicking down doors and taking it back
You could work, you could slave, no matter what, death still gets payed
You could parish or you could thrive
Flip the coin to see which side

Not trying to live extraordinary lives, we'll just scrape by
Conquer the whole world, that's well and fine
We will just scrape by
We will just scrape by
We will just scrape

The only time I ever felt contentment was when I was gasping for another breath
