I have heard your stories about your fast trains But now I'll tell you 'bout one all the southern folks have see $\ensuremath{\text{n}}$

She's the beauty of the southland, listen to that whistle screa $\ensuremath{\mathtt{m}}$

It's that Pan American on her way to New Orleans

She leaves Cincinnati heading down that Dixie line When she passes the Nashville tower, you can hear that whistle whine

Stick your head right out of the window and feel that southern breeze

You're on that Pan American on her way to New Orleans

If you're ever in the southland, and want to see the scenes Just get yourself a ticket on that Pan American Queen There's Louisville, Nashville, Montgomery, the capital of Alaba m'

You right pass thru them all when you're New Orleans bound

She leaves Cincinnati heading down that Dixie line When she passes the Nashville tower, you can hear that whistle whine

Stick your head right out of the window and feel that southern breeze

You're on that Pan American on her way to New Orleans

You're on that Pan American on her way to New Orleans