

The Universe

Hardwell

In the beginning there was darkness
The world gave birth to an endless expanding system
Of time, space and matter
Now, see farther than we've ever imagined
Beyond the limits of our existence
In a place we call, the universe

Five, four, three, two, one, fire!

There is an everchanging place
Where unexplained mysteries
Will continue to elude us
But we're edging ever closer
To unlocking the keys to our past
And pathways to our future
There is still plenty left to discover
About a place we call, the universe

Five, four, three, two, one, fire!