

Acid Rain

Heart Attack Man

Dip yourself in stomach acid
Replicate the nicks and scratches

Carve you out and sweep away the little shreds and dying layers
Watch it all wash away
The arrangement of vein-like streams of acid rain
And stress fractured pavement

The iron gates are oxidizing
The lonely ghost is slowly rising
And every time I think about you now
I reminisce on all the time we spent
And how I thought that time was endless

But everything rusts, rots, wilts, withers, decomposes
Or fades away someday

I wish I could pretend you don't even exist at all
But all that I can do now is slowly watch you dissolve
I wish I could pretend you don't even exist at all
But all that I can do now is slowly watch you dissolve
