

Children of a Lesser God

Heaven Shall Burn

This is a life led in the shadows of your greed
As all your rotten leaders keep on corrupting our peace

So profit craving and addicted to increase
There is no limit, no giving over
But I swear that this cold man-eating machine
Will be destroyed and shall rust away

This is a land, crushed by the pressure of your needs
Since mindless wastage and consumption growing stronger day by day

There is this cause you once called guilt
Now you just wash it off your hands
Yes, we are the children of a lesser god
But hear my oath, we shall untie this Gordian knot!

Never kiss the hands of the swayers

This is a man, scarred by injustice and defeat
Enslaved and kept away from education
Now so frustrated and distracted on their knees
They beg for reform, they pray for rescue

To the masters of their earthly misery I swear
I'll throw just everything against my bitter fate!

There is this cause you once called guilt
Yet you just wash it off your hands
Yes, we are the children of a lesser god
But hear my oath, we shall untie this fatal knot!

Never kiss the hands of the swayers
And never bow to servants
And betrayers

There is no conflict, as none of you has any interest in me.
Where rights of men should rule, there are just blindness,
Disregard and apathy. Your shining promise,
This so-called pursuit of happiness, it is all exclusive,
It's just a lie to keep you warm.

World conquest

This baneful dogma of reckless accretion
Your highest law and order
Within the darkness of your domineering ignorance
We roam about, we go astray
And nothing you will ever hear
About this struggle
About this lonely fight for survival...
