

Comfort, Edge

Helena Deland

I can never know for sure just what you do (So much later, I've gotten used to your sheets)
Unless I stick around and see it through (It wakes me up, I can't sleep, and so I reach for)
It doesn't ever matter what you say (A tall glass of water)
It always ends up going either way (Sip at it watch you dream, and all the secrets you keep, they make me wonder)

No, you'll never make a fool of me
No, you'll never make a fool of me

You'll make it so
It's easy for me to get away from you
Without me having to tell you
Where I go or what I do
And all the while protecting and giving me security
I never have to doubt when I come back
You'll still be there for me

Give me comfort, give me edge
Make it easy, make me beg
Let me come for calm and peace
Never stop surprising me

I see your face in the mirror
As it puts on the expression
It only has in reflections
And I know, I'm scared of going further
Into what you choose to show me
A trail of hints I can't see:
You'll fuck me over

You'll never make a fool of me
No, you'd never make a fool of me

You'll make it so
It's easy for me to get away from you
Without me having to tell you
Where I go or what I do
And all the while protecting and giving me security
I never have to doubt when I come back
You'll still be there for me

Give me comfort, give me edge
Make it easy, make me beg
Let me come for calm and peace
Never stop surprising me

I can never know for sure just what you do
Unless I stick around and see it through
It doesn't ever matter what you say
It always ends up going either way
