

Breathe, be still, be free
Be the anomaly that you deserve to be
Bitterness, let it go
For as long as it has you, you're all alone

Youth exudes, this is how it is
Ain't a thing stiff gin and cigarettes can't fix
We are the wild ones
Ain't a thing gonna change
Young Hellions, liberated
Taking our place

Hindsight can relieve, but it won't set you free
These contemporary lies, are fucking poisoning me
Why should we squander, ever-waning youth
On some pseudo-dogma bullshit that they told us in school

Fall, let go, you'll soar
Lead the civil war that they cannot ignore
On hypocrisy, running far and wide
For a youth so crass and desensitized
Truth exudes, brother can't you see;
You can be anything you've ever wanted to be
And to the wild ones;
Live at your own pace
For our true enemy has yet to show it's face

Hindsight can relieve, but it won't set you free
These contemporary lies, are fucking poisoning me
Why should we squander, ever-waning youth
On some pseudo-dogma bullshit that they told us in school

All of this, all that I've got -
I'd lay down for my friends

When you choke, brother I stop breathing
And when you fall, you know that I start bleeding out
Beyond all doubt, each day in, each day out
For everything that we're doing now
Is a result of what we did back then
Old lessons, reinforced
Again, again
Again, again

We are just specks in time
Particles lost in a grand design
We all exist, but so few live
Burn out in a brilliant blaze
Don't fade into an idle haze
We all exist but so few live

We are the wild ones
Forever free, forever young
We are the wild ones
Forever free, forever young
Forever young