

Half Hearted

Hendersin

We should keep in mind that the pain goes
Without the rain, well we wouldn't see the rainbows
A picture-perfect life for you, I see the angles
And happiness is right in front of us, it dangles
But we need to make some change till it jangles
And put my heart through the ring until it mangles
And love her bad, I feel I earned my stripe spangles
We can have something sweeter than some mangoes, yeah

I feel like I'm afraid
To say how I feel, to know I let you down
'Cause late nights turn to days
Don't wanna let you down
With each breath we give away
It'll never be the same
I'm chasing somebody
Who won't ever ease the pain

But I don't want...
If it's only, only half
Of your heart
Your heart, heart, heart

I wanna know about your good traits and your bad ones
Wanna know about your good days and your sad ones
The ones that had clouds and the ones that had suns
Your mom memories and all your dad ones
Wanna know about the things that make you tick
And understand all your choices and how you pick
And understand your well-being and what makes you sick
When it comes to true love, I'm hoping this is it, yeah

I feel like I'm afraid
You're the only thing I can't change
I live life on a page
That was written too long ago

And I don't want half
Of your heart, heart, heart
You can have it back
If it's only, only half
Of your heart

If it's only, only half
Of your heart
Of your heart, heart, heart
You can have it back
If it's only, only half
Of your heart
