

The Only

High Valley

They see blue jeans walking by
I see my ship coming in
They see the end of the night
I see a night that won't end
They see footprints in the sand
I see an ocean of you
Always was, always will be you

Cause' you ain't just that hometown, baby your my homegirl
You ain't just a sundown, you're spinning my whole world
You ain't just a number, I call when I'm lonely
You ain't just another, baby your the only, only

Always was, always gonna be
Always gonna only be you

Ten-thousand hands in the air, somehow I only see two
In a late night crowd full of smoke, the fire is you You're the first real breath I ever breathe
You're The Beatles backward melody
You're the first of the last of anything I ever need

Cause' you ain't just that hometown, baby you're my homegirl
You ain't just a sundown, you're spinning my whole world
You ain't just a number, I call when I'm lonely
You ain't just another, baby you're the only, only

Always was, always gonna be
Always gonna only be you

Always was, always gonna be
Always gonna only be you

You ain't just that hometown (you ain't that hometown), baby yo u're my homegirl
You ain't just a sundown, your spinning my whole world (your sp inning my whole world)
You ain't just a number, I'm callin' when I'm lonely (callin' w hen I'm lonely)
You ain't just another, baby your the only, the only

Always was, always gonna be
Always gonna only be you
Always was, always gonna be
Always gonna only be you
