

You Can Do Better

Holly Macve

You gave me up for a little while
Like a habit you wanted to break
You saw yourself in my glassy eyes
And it brought you back to your mistakes

So you took a train to a different town
To try somethin' new
The night was young, became lost and old
Like the way things always do

Is it so wrong to love you?
Is it so wrong to care?
Is it so bad to want you?
I can do better, baby, I swear

You tied me up with your ribbons
Like I was meant for someone other than you
I tried to keep you smiling
You just kept making me sad and blue

So I took the train, two stops down
And found myself somebody new
I drank myself away
Till I was hollow and I was untrue

Is it so wrong to love you?
Is it so wrong to care?
Is it so bad to want you?
I can do better, baby, I swear
You can do better, baby, I swear

Is it so wrong to love you?
Is it so wrong to care?
Is it so wrong to care?
Is it so wrong to love you?
Is it so wrong to love you?

Is it so wrong to love you?
Is it so wrong to care?
Is it so wrong to love you?
Is it so wrong to care?
