

Elevator

Holy Holy

She picked me up
It was cold and it was raining
I slammed the door, kissed her cheek

She had been smoking
She indicated and we pulled into the flow of the night

We headed south
Took the bridge across the river
We talked about what she had done since I'd been with her
I hadn't changed
But she just laughed and I apologized

You were a heartbreaker
I could've told you that
But I could live with anything like that
You are a memory
That I could never leave
If I could I'd do it all again

'Cause I wanted more
Just like everyone
Just like everyone
Yeah, I wanted more

What do we get to keep?
What do we borrow?
You asked me then if I had to work tomorrow
I said I'd throw it off and you could take me home

We waited for the lift
The walls were swimmin'
And then we rose through the floors and the ceilings
She turned the key in the lock and we fell inside

You were a heartbreaker
I could've told you that
But I could live with anything like that
You are a memory
That I could never leave
If I could I'd do it all again

You were heartbreaker
I could've told you that
You were a heartbreaker
That wouldn't hold me back

You were heartbreaker
I could've told you that
You were a heartbreaker

Oh, you don't look back
No, you don't look back
No, you don't look back

Oh, you don't look back
