

Nobody

Hoodoo Gurus

I wish tonight could last forever,
It's like I've never seen the stars before.
We sit in silence by a river,
Aware that this can't happen anymore.

And you catch the moonlight in your hair and a whisper from nowhere softly tells me that I don't want nobody
I don't want nobody
I don't want no-one if I don't have you.

I guess you've always shared my feelings
But until now they've only held us back.
A wilderness of fear and darkness
That now reveals itself as innocence.

And you are so perfect in my sight.
We fall silent like the night that protects us.
And I don't want nobody
I don't want nobody
I don't want no-one if don't have you.

We must return to home and shelter and, like before, we'll go our separate ways.
What we have shared can't make any difference now,
Your lover calls, your lover calls
And you go back there
While I only wonder what I'll do
All tomorrow without you-
All I know is now
I don't want nobody
I don't want no-one if I don't have you.
