

Let It Begin

Hudson Taylor

I'm making the promise I'm making
I promise I'll try not to break it
I'll spend my time holding the line
Between pulling my weight and living my my life

As I look at the sun from my window
I find myself in its shadows
And I breathe and I breathe and I breathe

Let it begin, let it begin, let it begin

I don't want to call this surrender
But the buyer must pay back the lender
And I can't seem to find the money or time
To pack it all in and leave it behind

So please be my one honest broker
And don't put my words in the choker
Make a deal, if you feel, it's a steal

Let it begin, let it begin, let it begin

I promise I won't hold resentment
For not being the greatest investment
If you promise this time to keep me in mind
When you're spending the money upon which I survive

A change here will always be welcome
As a deal is not done till it's undone
I can dream, I can scheme, I can scream

Let it begin, let it begin, let it begin
Let it begin, let it begin

I speak with no alternate option
I hope I can speak to your conscience
Wait and see, wait and see, wait and see

Let it begin, let it begin, let it begin
Let it begin, let it begin, let it begin

When will this story be over?
Will creation belong to it's owner?
Or will we all live the lie, that's tries deny
That selling your soul is perfectly fine
